

MISS SEETON READING LIST – by Tom Thorburn

Sarah J. Mason (1949), writing as "Hamilton Crane", then took up the series, writing 14 books in all. She has also published 8 detective novels under own name.

Miss Seeton Cracks the Case (1991)

It was the perfect day for a coach tour until a band of thugs blocked the road and robbed the passengers.

Miss Seeton Paints the Town (1991)

Miss Seeton's rather unusual drawings for the Best Kept Village Competition may hold vital clues to a recent series of fires.

Miss Seeton Rocks the Cradle (1992)

The abandoned baby found in a telephone box turns out to be the missing Scottish heiress little Lady MacSporran.

Hands Up, Miss Seeton (1992)

In a flurry of confusion, Miss Seeton is accused of being a thief's accomplice.

Miss Seeton by Moonlight (1992)

A strange rash of burglaries has Scotland Yard baffled.

Miss Seeton Plants Suspicion (1993)

When Nigel Colveden is arrested for murder, the entire village of Plummergen is shocked.

Miss Seeton Goes to Bat (1993)

Miss Seeton returns in a case of dastardly doings at a cricket match.

Starring Miss Seeton (1994)

While working backstage on Plummergen's annual Christmas pageant, retired art teacher Miss Seeton uncovers a collection of rare silver--and a murder.

Miss Seeton Undercover (1994)

Miss Emily Seeton steps in to investigate when a woman is found dead after a gang of thieves plunders a fortune in antiques from the village of Plummergen.

Miss Seeton Rules (1994)

Anticipating the arrival of Princess Georgina, Miss Seeton becomes an unwitting accomplice in the princess's abduction.

Sold to Miss Seeton (1995)

A rainy and dreary Plummergen day sets the scene for an all-new mystery featuring the indomitable Miss Seeton.

Sweet Miss Seeton (1996)

An eccentric artist has his eyes on Miss Seeton's cottage for his newest work: a chocolate-covered house.

Bonjour Miss Seeton (1997)

During the first attempt at building the Channel tunnel between England and France, Miss Seeton makes a crossing of her own.

Miss Seeton's Finest Hour (1999)

When art teacher Miss Seeton answers her country's call to duty during World War II, her life changes dramatically.